

TITLE 9
DOMESTIC RELATIONS

CHAPTER 9.01
Spouses

9.0101 Mutual obligations; Contracts between spouses.

Spouses contract toward each other obligations of mutual respect, fidelity, and support. Either spouse may enter into any transaction with the other, or with any other person.

Spouses cannot by a contract with each other, alter their legal relations, except as to property, and except that they may agree in writing to an immediate separation and may make provisions for the support of either of them and of their children during such separation. The mutual consent of the parties is sufficient consideration for such separation agreement.

3. Either spouse may, without the consent of the other, convey his, her, or their separate property.
4. Either spouse may make a complete inventory of his or her separate property and file a signed and acknowledged copy with the Clerk of the Tribal Court. The filing of inventory is notice and prima facie evidence of the ownership of the property. Amended-Resolution No. TMBC1144-08-20

9.0103 Titles to property.

Spouses may hold real property that is not the separate property of either spouse together as joint tenants or tenants in common. Personal property that is not the separate property of either spouse shall be held jointly.

Amended-Resolution No. TMBC1144-08-20

9.0104 Transfer of property; Benefit of the other spouse; Other spouse may transfer.

If a spouse abandons his, her, or their spouse for one (1) year or more, is imprisoned for one (1) year or more, or is declared physically or mentally incompetent leaving the other spouse without means of support, the Tribal Court upon application of the other spouse, duly verified and supported by such evidence as the Court deems necessary, may order that the applicant or some other person take charge of, manage, control, sell, or encumber the property of such imprisoned, incompetent or offending person in order to make suitable provisions for the support and maintenance of his or her spouse and children during the period of abandonment, imprisonment, or incompetency.

9.0105 Rights and liabilities as to third persons; Neither liable for the other; Property of one immune from liability of the other.

Neither spouse is answerable for the acts of the other. The earnings and accumulations of either spouse and the children in his or her custody while they live separate and apart from the other spouse are the separate property of that spouse unless otherwise provided by agreement between the spouses.

The separate property of either spouse is not liable for the debts of the other contracted before marriage. The separate property of each is liable for his, her, or their own debts contracted before or after marriage

Both spouses shall be jointly and severally liable for the purchase price, if agreed upon at the time of purchase, or for the reasonable value of all the necessaries by either spouse for their family while they are living together as a married couple. Amended-Resolution No. 1144-08-20 9.0106 Rights of married individuals; Same as single.

1. A married individual has the sole and exclusive control of the individual's separate property and shall retain all the civil and property rights of a single individual over his/her/their separate property after marriage.

2. A married individual may buy and sell, receive and convey, or dispose of by will or otherwise of any of his/ her/ their separate property without joining the name of the individual's spouse in the action.

3. Separate property brought in to a married household that is of cultural or significance and traditionally held by a family as a unit, rather than individuals within the family (e.g. regalia), shall pass to the individual's children or family upon the individual's death instead of passing to the individual's spouse, unless otherwise provided by the deceased's last will and testament.

4. A married individual may sue for any injury to the individual's reputation, person or separate property, in that individual's own name without joining his/her/their spouse as party plaintiff.

5. Actions founded upon a married individual's separate contracts or torts or relating to his/her/their individual property may be brought against the individual without joining the individual's spouse as party defendant.

9.0107 Capacity of married persons under age of majority.

Lawfully married persons eighteen (18) years of age or over shall not be under legal disability by reason of their minority with regard to any transaction affecting their joint or separate property.

A dissolution of marriage shall not deprive either party who is eighteen (18) years of age or over of authority to enter into transactions affecting the joining property acquired during marriage and which may be vested in either or both of them as the result of dissolution of marriage. Amended-Resolution No. TMBC1144-08-20

Parent Grandparent and Child

9.0201 Presumption of legitimacy; Legitimation by marriage of parents.

All children born in wedlock are resumed to be legitimate. All children of a woman who has been married, born within ten (10) months after the dissolution of the marriage are presumed to be legitimate of that marriage. A child born before wedlock becomes legitimate by the subsequent marriage of its parents. The children of all marriage null in law or dissolved by divorce, are legitimate.

9.0202 Dispute legitimacy proof.

Presumption of legitimacy can be disputed only by the husband or wife, or the descendant of one or both of them. Illegitimacy in such cases may be proved like any other fact.

9.0203 Custody of legitimate children; Rights of parents.

The father and mother of a legitimate unmarried child are equally entitled to its custody, service, and earnings. If either the father or mother be dead or refuse to take the custody or has abandoned his or her family, the other is entitled to its custody, service, and earnings.

9.0204 Custody of an illegitimate child.

The mother of an illegitimate unmarried child is entitled to its custody, services, and earnings.

- 9.0205 Custody of child when parents living separately.
Neither spouse has superior rights in regard to the care, custody, education and control of the children of the marriage when living separate and apart from each other without being divorced. The Tribal Court, upon application of either, may inquire into the custody of any unmarried child of the marriage, and may award the custody of such child to either for such time and under such regulations as the case may require. The Court must be guided by the rules provided by law for awarding custody of a child or appointing guardians. Amended-Resolution No. TMBC1144-08-20
- 9.0206 Residence of a child; Determination by parents; Restrictions.
A parent entitled to the custody of a child has a right to change the child's residence, subject to the power of the Tribal Court to restrain a removal which would prejudice the rights or welfare of the child.
- 9.0207 Parental authority; Abuse; Remedy.
The abuse of parental authority is the subject of a civil action in the Tribal Court, brought by the child or by anyone on the child's behalf; and when the abuse is established, the child may be freed from the custody of the parent and the duty of support and education enforced.
- 9.0208 Termination of parental authority.
The authority of a parent ceases:
1. Upon the appointment by the Tribal Court of a guardian of the person of the child;
2. Upon the marriage of the child; or
3. Upon its attaining majority.
- 9.0209 Imputing minor's liability to parents; Limited.
Any person suffering damages to real, personal, or mixed property, through the malicious and willful act or acts of a minor child or children under the ages of eighteen (18) years while residing with their parents, shall have therefore a cause of action against and recover of the parents of such child or children. In each case the amount of recover against one or both of the parents shall be limited to actual damages.
- 9.0210 Liability of parent imputed to child.
A child is not liable for the damages caused by the acts of his parent or parents to the property of a third person.
- 9.0211 Support of child; Education.
The parent entitled to the custody of a child must give it support and education suitable to his circumstances. If the support and education that the custodial parent of the child is able to give are inadequate, the non-custodial parent must assist him to the extent of her ability.
If either spouse receives into his or her family and supports the children of their spouse by a former spouse, it is presumed he or she does so as a parent and where such is the case the children are not liable to the parent for their support, nor the parent to them for their services. Amended-Resolution No. TMBC1144-08-20
- 9.0212 Child supported by other parent, relative, or a third person; Parent liability.
If a parent neglects to provide articles necessary for his child who is under his charge, according to the parent's ability, a third person may in good faith supply such necessities and recover the reasonable value thereof from the parent, but a parent is not bound to compensate the other parent or a relative for the voluntary support of his child without an agreement for compensation, nor to compensate a stranger for the support of a child who has abandoned the parent without a just cause.

- 9.0213 Support of child from its estate or estate of its parent; Allowance to parent or tribe.
The Tribal Court may direct an allowance to be made to a parent of a child out of the child's property for the child's past or future and education, on such conditions as may be proper.
If a parent dies leaving the support of its child chargeable upon the Tribe, but leaving an estate sufficient for the child's support, the Tribe may claim provision for the child's support from his parents' estate by civil action, and for this purpose may have the same remedies as creditors against the estate and against the heirs, devisees, and next of kin of the parent.
- 9.0214 Support of adult child; Compensation.
Where a child, after attaining majority, continues to serve and to be supported by the parent, neither party is entitled to compensation, in the absence of an agreement therefore.
- 9.0215 Property and earnings of a child; Relinquishment by parents.
The parent, as such, has no control over the property of the child. The wages of a child employed in service may be paid to him or her until the parent or guardian entitled thereto gives the employer notice that he claims such wages.
- 9.0216 Grandparental rights of visitation to unmarried minor child; Mediation or arbitration.
The grandparents and great-grandparents of an unmarried minor child may be granted reasonable and balanced visitation rights to the child by the tribal court upon a finding that visitation would be in the best interests of the child and would not adversely interfere with the parent-child relationship. The tribal court shall consider the amount of the personal contact that has occurred between the grandparents or great-grandparents and the child and the child's parents.
The burden to show that it is in the best interest of the child(ren) to have some visitation and some quality time with their grandparents lies with the grandparents by clear and convincing evidence and the grandparents also must show by clear and convincing evidence that such grandparent visitation would not adversely interfere with the parent-child relationship.
Grandparent visitation is a matter of how much and how the visitation is going to be structured; and, that the Tribal Court(s) may not award visitation unless a parent has denied (or unreasonably denied) visitation to the concerned third party (i.e. grandparents) and parties involved have first gone to mediation or arbitration.
The subordinate right of the grandparents under Turtle Mountain traditional law to have visitation with their grandchildren, regardless of which parent has custody of the child(ren), and regardless of whether the parents are together or not is hereby recognized and affirmed.
- 9.0217 Domestic Relations.
The Turtle Mountain Tribal Code does not currently address the issue of the subordinate right of grandparents to visit their grandchild(ren) and the Tribe takes into consideration that if too many third parties are allowed to dilute the superior right of the parent(s) to care, custody, and control of their children, then such tribal interference would be contrary to the federal constitution; and therefore, third parties (i.e. grandparents) cannot be allowed to rely solely on the best interests of the child(ren) analysis to dilute and compete with fundamental, paramount, and superior parental rights. Should a parent or other custodian of a child wish to disallow a child's grandparents from exercising the subordinate right recognized in Section 9.0216 above, the grandparents must first argue their subordinate right to visitation through mediation and show, by clear and convincing evidence, that the grandparents are not a threat to the physical and/or moral health and welfare of the child and that such grandparent visitation would not adversely interfere with the parent-child relationship.

This section does not apply to agency adoptions or when the child has been adopted by a person other than a stepparent or grandparent. Any visitation rights granted under this section before the adoption of the child may be terminated upon the adoption if termination of the rights is in the best interest of the child.

An application for visitation rights under this section may be considered by the tribal court in conjunction with a divorce proceeding involving the parent of the minor child. If any tribal court retains jurisdiction over the residential placement of the minor child or children by virtue of any prior proceeding, the rights conferred by this section maybe enforced by the grandparents or the great-grandparents through motion under the prior proceeding. If no tribal court otherwise has jurisdiction, a proceeding to enforce grandparental visitation rights may be brought against the parent having primary residential responsibility as a civil action and venued in the county of residence of the minor child.

Termination of Parental Rights of a Child

9.0301 Relinquishment of Parental Rights.

Relinquishment of parental rights with respect to a child; voluntary judicial termination of parental rights with respect to a child.

1. Effect of relinquishment. A voluntary relinquishment to an agency shall be effective to terminate the parental rights of the person executing it and' shall transfer from the parent to the agency all powers of such parent, including the right to place a child for adoption and to consent to the adoption of the child. Relinquishment of a child by one parent does not diminish the parental rights of the other parent of the child, nor does it relieve either parent of a duty otherwise provided by law to support the child until such child has been adopted or such parent's parental rights have been terminated by judicial decree.
2. Relinquishment by American Indian parent. A voluntary relinquishment by an American Indian parent who is a member of a federally-recognized tribe shall conform to requirements of federal law.
3. Counseling of parent prior to relinquishment. Prior to taking a relinquishment, the agency shall counsel the parent of a child regarding relinquishment, adoption, and the alternatives to relinquishment, and shall assist him in understanding and exploring the assistance and services, which may be available to his child if he chooses to relinquish the child.
4. Court termination required when parents fail to understand process. If the agency doubts the comprehension by the parent of the meaning or consequences of relinquishment, or if the parent so requests, the agency shall not proceed to take a relinquishment, but shall assist the parent in petitioning the Court for voluntary termination of parental rights.
5. Procedures of voluntary judicial termination of parental rights. Except as provided in the following subsection (6), procedures for voluntary judicial termination of parental rights with respect to a child shall be the same as for voluntary terminations generally.
6. Confirmation of counseling. At the hearing on a petition for voluntary termination of parental rights, the Court shall ascertain that the petitioner has been counseled by the agency regarding termination and adoption and regarding the assistance and services which may be available to his child if he chooses not to terminate his rights as to the child, and that the petitioner voluntarily chooses to terminate his rights.
7. Disposition upon denial of petition. Where the Court denies a petition for voluntary termination of parental rights; the Court shall order an agency to assess the needs of the child, the care the child is receiving, and the plan of the unsuccessful petitioner for the child. The agency shall submit a report on its investigation to the Court within thirty days of such order.

9.0302 Restoration of parental rights relinquished or voluntarily terminated with respect to a child.

1. Petition for restoration of parental rights. Any time after one year after the execution of a relinquishment or issuance of a decree of voluntary termination of parental rights, if the child as to whom parental rights were relinquished or terminated has neither been adopted nor is in an adoptive placement, the parent whose rights were relinquished or terminated may petition the Tribal Court for restoration of parental rights. However, upon fifteen days notice to the petitioners and the Court having jurisdiction of the petition, and unless otherwise ordered by the Court, an agency may place a child for adoption during the pendency of the petition and such placement will have the effect of terminating the petition. In the case of an adoptive placement made during the pendency of such a petition, the prospective adoptive parent(s) with whom the child is placed shall be notified by the agency of the petition prior to placement.
2. Appearance by guardian or agency. Any guardian of the child's person and the agency to which the child was relinquished shall have the right to receive notice and appear at the hearing to show cause why such restoration or rights should not occur. If the Court finds upon clear and convincing evidence that restoration of parental rights would be in the best interest of the child, it shall order restoration.

9.0303 Assessment of child and report.

1. Assessment required in contested actions. A Court with jurisdiction of a contested suit for involuntary termination shall order an assessment of needs of the child who is the subject of the suit. Such assessment shall be conducted by a non-party agency selected by the Court.
2. Time for completion of assessment; Court's use of report. A report of the assessment shall be submitted within thirty days after the Court directive, unless the Court grants a request for an extension. The report may be introduced into evidence in accordance with the rules of evidence. In the absence of an objection, the report may be used by the Court whether or not introduced into evidence, in deciding whether the petition for involuntary termination of parental rights shall be granted.
3. Contents of Assessments. The assessment shall include but not be limited to the physical, mental, and emotional conditions of the child and parents, history of intra-family relationships, services offered in an attempt to reunify the family, the proposed plan to meet the special needs of the child, and the wishes of the child according to his maturity of judgment.

9.0304 Grounds for involuntary termination of parental rights with respect to a child.

1. Grounds for involuntary termination of parental rights. An order of the Court for involuntary termination of the legal parent-child relationship shall be rendered if the Court finds that the termination is in the best interest of the child, and that one or more of the following circumstances or grounds for involuntary termination exist:
 - a. The identity or location of the parent is unknown and the parent has not claimed the child for a period of sixty days after the child is found; despite diligent efforts to ascertain the parent's identity and location.
 - b. As a ground for an order of involuntary termination against the father or putative father, the child was conceived as the result of an act of forcible rape; or as ground for an order of involuntary termination against the father, putative father, or mother, the child was conceived as the result of an act of incest.

c. The child has been adjudicated to have been abused or neglected or dependent in a prior proceeding. In determining whether termination of parental rights would be in the best interest of the child in such case, the Court shall consider and make written findings regarding the factors contained in Subsection 2 of this Section 9.0304 and the following conditions or acts of the parent:

- (1) Emotional illness, mental illness, mental deficiency, or use of alcohol or controlled substances rendering the parent unable to care for the immediate and on-going physical or psychological needs of the child; or
- (2) Any proven act or acts of abuse or neglect toward any child in the family subsequent to the adjudication of abuse or neglect; or
- (3) Repeated or continuous failure by the parents, although physically and financially able, to provide the child with adequate food, clothing, shelter, or education as defined by law or other care and control necessary for his physical, mental, or emotional health and development, but a parent who, legitimately practicing his religious belief, does not provide specified medical treatment or education for a child, is not for that reason alone a negligent parent.
- (4) The child has been out of the physical custody of the parent for one year; or the parent, including the father whose paternity has been adjudicated, has failed to take physical custody of the child within sixty days of the birth or adjudication; and:
 - (a) The conditions, which led to the separation still persist, or similar conditions of a potentially harmful nature continues to exist.
 - (b) There is little likelihood that those conditions will be remedied at an early date so that the child can be returned to the parent in the near future; and
 - (c) The continuation of the legal parent-child relationship greatly diminishes the child's prospects for early integration into a stable and permanent family.

In determining whether termination of parental rights would be in the best interest of the child under this Subsection (d) the Court shall consider and make written findings regarding the factors contained in Subsection (2) of this Section 9.0304.

d. The child has been out of the physical custody the parent for a period of eighteen months and:

- (1) The child has developed an emotionally stable relationship with his de facto parent.
- (2) The de facto parent has expressed an intent to adopt the child; and to adopt the child;
- (3) The child wishes to be adopted by the facto parent.

2. Factors to be considered in certain instances. In determining whether to terminate parental rights under subsections (1)(c) or (1)(d) of this section, the Court shall consider and make written findings regarding:

- a. The timeliness, nature, and extent of services offered or provided to the parent and the child to facilitate reunion of the child with the parent.
- b. The terms of any social service contract agreed to by an authorized agency and the parent, and the extent to which all parties have fulfilled their obligations under such contract.
- c. The feelings and emotional ties of the child with respect to his parents; and
- d. The effort the parent has made to adjust his circumstances, conduct, or conditions to make it in the best interest of the child to return him to his home, including:

- (1) The extent to which the parent has maintained regular visitation or other contact with the child as part of a plan to reunite the child with the parent.
 - (2) The payment of a reasonable portion of substitute physical care and portion of substitute physical care and maintenance if financially able to do so.
 - (3) The maintenance of regular contact or communication with the custodian of the child.
 - (4) Whether available additional services would be likely to bring about lasting parental adjustment enabling a return of the child to the parent within a reasonable period of time.
3. Factors to be considered in all instances. Where any of the circumstances in subsections (1) (a) through (1)(e) of this Section 9.0304 exist, the Court shall consider:
- a. The contents of the assessment and report, if any, submitted pursuant to Section 9.0303 of this Code.
 - b. The specific benefits to the child of continuing the legal parent-child relationship.
 - c. The wishes of the child regarding termination of the legal parent-child relationship.
4. Rehabilitation of parent. The maintenance of a legal parent-child relationship for the purpose of rehabilitation of a parent shall not be sufficient grounds for continuation of such relationship.
5. Deprivation of custody through divorce, separation, act of other parent. Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Section 9.0304, no legal parent-child relationship may be terminated solely because a parent has been deprived of the legal custody of a child by reason of a divorce or a legal separation, or of the physical custody of a child by the act of conduct of the other parent of the child.

Hearing and Service of Notice Thereon.

Such transfer of the permanent care, control, and custody of a child and the termination of the rights of the parents with reference to the child shall be made only after a special hearing before the Court and the Court shall cause notice of the time, place, and purpose of such hearing to be served within or without the jurisdiction of the Turtle Mountain Jurisdiction on the parents or surviving parent or the father of an illegitimate child against whom paternity has been duly adjudged, upon the general guardian of any such child, upon a general guardian of the mother of an illegitimate child, the general guardian of the father of an illegitimate child against whom paternity has been duly adjudged for at least ten (10) days prior to the date of the hearing. When it appears to the satisfaction of the Court that personal service cannot be obtained, then by publication thereof in a newspaper of general area circulation once a week for three (3) consecutive weeks prior to the date of the hearing.

Disposition of petition for involuntary termination of parental rights with respect to a child.

1. Disposition upon granting petition. If, after considering all the evidence at the adjudicatory hearing, the Court finds that sufficient grounds exist for involuntary termination of the legal parent-child relationship, it shall:
 - a. Enter an order terminating the legal parent-child relationship; and
 - b. If such order has the effect of terminating the parent-child relationship with respect to both parents or to the last surviving parent, appoint an individual or agency guardian of the child's person. The guardian of the child's person shall report to the Court within ninety days on a permanent placement plan for the child. At least every six months thereafter, a report shall be made to the Court on the implementation of such plan. The Court shall review the plan for the child no less than once a year.

2. Denial of petition.
 - a. If the Court finds that sufficient grounds for involuntary termination of the legal parent-child relationship do not exist, it shall make an appropriate order with respect to the custody and protection of the child, and may either continue its jurisdiction or dismiss the petition as may be appropriate in the circumstances.
 - b. If the Court finds that the services or social service contract as described in Section 9.0304 (2a) and (2b) of this Act were insufficient or inadequate, the Court may order an agency to develop a plan of service for the child and his parents.
 - c. Any order the Court makes under Subsection 2(a) of this Section 9.0306 shall specify what residual rights and responsibilities remain with each living parent, and shall designate the period of time the order shall remain in effect, with mandatory review by the Court no later than six months thereafter and at subsequent intervals of not more than one year.
3. Court Review of Permanent Placement Plan. In conducting reviews pursuant to Subsections 1(b) and 2(c) of the Section 9.0306, the Court or a hearing officer designated by the Court shall hold a hearing and require that the presence of the guardian of the child's person or any other person the Court or the hearing officer deems necessary to conduct the review.

Court order granting termination of parental rights of a child.

1. Form and content of orders. Every order the Court makes pursuant to Section 9.0306 of this Act shall be in writing and shall recite the findings upon which the order is based, including findings pertaining to the jurisdiction of the Court. Every order must fix responsibility for the support of the child.
2. Finality of Orders. Except as otherwise provided for an interlocutory order, all orders are final, effective, and binding on all persons after the date of entry unless stayed pending an appeal.

Effect of termination decree of relinquishment of a child.

1. Effect of termination. Upon relinquishment of a child or termination of parental rights with respect to a child through a court decree, the parent ceases to be the legal parent of the child as to whom rights have been terminated. No such parent has a right to notice of proceedings for adoption of the child by another or to object to the adoption or otherwise to participate in the proceedings.
2. Parental Rights Independently Terminable. The legal parent-child relationship may be terminated with respect to one parent without affecting the legal relationship between the child and the other parent.
3. Agency to provide notice if termination challenged.
 - a. If the validity of a relinquishment or court order terminating parental rights with respect to a child is challenged in a Court of this Tribe, the Court in which such challenge is filed shall:
 - (1) Notify any agency to which the child was relinquished which is presently responsible for the child, which placed the child for adoption, or which provided post-placement services; and
 - (2) Hold a hearing to determine if any notice shall be provided the child and if so, the nature and the notice. At such hearing, the Court may appoint an Attorney Ad Litem to represent the child. An agency which is notified under Section (3-1) of this Section shall notify the adoptive parents of a child who has been adopted or, if the child has not been adopted, the prospective adoptive parents, if any. Such notice shall inform the parties of the pendency of the challenge and of their right to be heard regarding such challenge. The agency issuing such notice shall certify to the Court in which the attached was filed that the requirements of this subsection have been met.

- (3) If the validity of a relinquishment or court order terminating parental rights with respect to a child is challenged in a Court of any other jurisdiction, any agency of this Tribe which learns of such challenge by any means shall notify the agency responsible for the child prior to his placement or adoption, which in turn shall notify the adoptive or proposed adoptive parents, if any, of the pendency of a proceeding which may affect their status with respect to the child.

9.0705 Judicial approval.

1. The Turtle Mountain Tribal Court, after a reasonable effort has been made to notify the parents or guardian of each underaged party, may order the Tribal Court clerk to issue a marriage license and a marriage certificate form:

Pregnancy alone does not establish that the best interest of the party will be served.
3. The Turtle Mountain Tribal Court shall authorize performance of a marriage by proxy upon the showing required by the provisions on solemnization.

9.0706 Solemnization and registration.

1. A marriage may be solemnized by a judge of a court of record, by a public official whose powers include solemnization of marriages, or in accordance with any mode of solemnization recognized by any religious denomination, Indian Nation or Tribe. 2. If a party to a marriage is unable to be present at the solemnization, he may authorize in writing a third person to act as his proxy. If the person solemnizing the marriage is satisfied that the absent party is unable to be present and has consented to the marriage, he may solemnize the marriage by proxy. If he is not satisfied, the parties may petition the Tribal Court for an order permitting the marriage to be solemnized by proxy.
3. Upon receipt of the marriage certificate, the Tribal Court Clerk shall register the marriage.
4. The solemnization of the marriage is not invalidated by the fact that the person solemnizing the marriage was not legally qualified to solemnize it, if either party to the marriage believes him to be so qualified.

The following marriages are prohibited:

1. A marriage entered into prior to the dissolution of an earlier marriage of one (1) of the parties;
2. A marriage between an ancestor and a descendant, or between a brother and a sister, whether the relationship is by the half or whole blood, or by adoption;

A party lacked capacity to consent to the marriage at the time the marriage was solemnized, either because of mental incapacity or infirmity or because of the influence of alcohol, drugs, or other incapacitating substances, or a party was induced to enter into a marriage by force or duress, or by fraud involving the essentials of marriage;
 - b. A party lacks the physical capacity to consummate the marriage by sexual intercourse, and at the time the marriage was solemnized the other party did not know of the incapacity;

 - b. For the reason set forth in Subsection (a)(2), by either party, no later than one (1) year after the petitioner obtained knowledge of the described condition;
 - c. For the reasons set forth in Subsection (a)(3), by the underaged party, his parent or guardian, prior to the time the underaged party reaches the age at which he could have married without satisfying the omitted requirement.
3. A declaration of invalidity for the reason set forth in Subsection (a)(4) may be sought by either party, the legal spouse in case of a bigamous marriage, the Turtle Mountain Tribal Council or Tribal Police, or a child of either party, at any time, not to exceed five (5) years following the death of either party.
4. Children born of a marriage declared invalid are legitimate.
5. Unless the Court finds, after a consideration of all relevant circumstances, including the effect of a retroactive decree on third parties, that the interests of justice would be served by making the decree not retroactive, it shall declare the marriage invalid as of the date of the marriage. The provisions of this Act relating to property rights of the spouses, maintenance, support, and custody of children on dissolution of marriage are applicable to non-retroactive decrees of invalidity.

Putative spouse.

Any person who has cohabited with another to whom he, she, or they is not legally married in the good faith belief that he was married to that person is a putative spouse until knowledge of the fact that he is not legally married terminates his status and prevents acquisition of further rights. A putative spouse acquires the rights conferred upon a legal spouse, include the right to maintenance following termination of his status, whether or not the marriage is prohibited (Section 9.0707 of this Code) or declared invalid (Section 9.0708 of this Code). If there is a legal spouse or other putative spouses, rights acquired by a putative spouse do not supersede the rights of the legal spouse or those acquired by other putative spouses, but the Court shall apportion property, maintenance, and support rights among the claimants as appropriate in the circumstances and in the interests of justice.

All marriages contracted within the Turtle Mountain jurisdiction prior to the effective date of this Act, or outside of the Turtle Mountain jurisdiction, that were valid at the time of the contract or subsequently validated by the laws of the place they were contracted or by the domicile of the parties, are valid in this jurisdiction.

2. In a proceeding for dissolution of marriage or for legal separation, the terms of the separation agreement, except those providing for the support, custody, and visitation of children, are binding upon the court unless it finds, after considering the economic circumstances of the parties and any other relevant evidence produced by the parties, on their own motion or on request of the Court, that the separation agreement is unconscionable.

Child support.

Preamble. It is the policy of the Judicial Branch of Government of the Turtle Mountain Band of Chippewa to pronounce that every parent owes a duty to his/her/their child to provide support. Every child has a right to support from their parent whether or not the parent is present or absent. This right to support cannot be abrogated by agreement of the parents by contract, settlement or stipulation in any court decree. Furthermore, as a matter of law, it is proclaimed to be in the best interest of children to be supported by their parents. Support payments established by the Judicial Branch of Government under this policy are deemed minimums. Payments for the support of children may exceed these standards based upon the parent's ability to pay but may not be less than those payment levels established under this policy. Actual cash payments are based upon the parent's ability to pay as determined by their net income with allowances for authorized adjustments and special consideration that the court may find appropriate. Furthermore, it is expressly understood that support payments may be further reduced by the provision of clothing, food or other item necessary for the maintenance of the child by the parent required to pay child support as provided in these under this policy. Amended-Resolution No. TMBC1144-08-20

1. Definitions.

- a. Income: Income includes all sources available to the parent including but not limited to employment wages and salaries, commissions, fees, social security benefits, pension benefits, veterans benefits, cash value of benefits received such as free housing, free meals, unemployment benefits, insurance benefits, disability payments, life insurance benefits, income from trust funds, endowments and investments, self employment income (minus the cost of making the income), income from property such as rent (minus costs of generating the income), income tax refunds. Income of a remarried parent's spouse is not income for the purpose of this section. Furthermore, the income of the custodial spouse will not be considered in any manner to reduce the obligation of support of the non-custodial parent.
- b. Adjustments: Allowable adjustments to income include the following; federal income tax withheld, social security tax, state income tax, mandatory withholdings such as unemployment insurance tax, disability insurance taxes, union dues when mandatory, taxes on equipment or property when and only when that equipment or property has been directly included in the generation of income, health insurance premiums only if the policy includes the child or children who are the subject of the support payments. All other adjustments to income such as savings or loan payments, garnishments for bad debt etc. are not allowed to reduce income.
- c. Extraordinary adjustments: Catastrophic medical expenses, major casualty loss, and costs not covered by the employer for items necessary for work. An example is the cost of tools for a mechanic in a garage.
- d. Assets: Includes all forms of property owned in whole or in part by the parent except for the parent's principle residence, the residences furnishings and one vehicle if the vehicle is used to produce income.

This includes property whether chattels or real. Examples include money in savings or checking accounts, trust land, tax land, vehicles, farm equipment, jewelry, business interests, loan value of insurance policies, stocks, bonds and other securities, and money or things owed by others to the parent.

2. The child support obligation shall be derived from first determining the income of the parent minus any adjustments and Extraordinary adjustments allowable under this section. After this computation, the NET INCOME of the parent will be determined.
3. Should income be insufficient to meet the minimum support standards of this policy, the court may look to the assets of the parent to satisfy the support obligation.
4. Child support obligation shall be 15% of the parent's net income if support is sought for one child, nineteen percent (19%) if supporting two children, and three percent (3%) additional for each additional child. Examples include an absent parent supporting one child will be required to pay 15% of their income to support that child. A parent supporting two children, 19% of their net income, three children, 22% of their net income, four children 25% of their net income, five children 28% of their net income, and six children 31% of their net income. These percentages shall not be diminished due to remarriage or the parenting of other children. The above percentage may be reduced in any month in which the parent to whom child support is ordered furnishes things necessary for the child such as clothing, food or other items. This reduction, however, shall not exceed 20% of the total cash obligation of the parent. When all of the children to which support is being sought are from the same family, the maximum net income subject to child support shall be 35%. When support is sought for children from more than one family, the maximum net income subject to child support shall be 50% with all first children of each family being financially supported equally. The first child in each family will be supported at 10% of net income. This example will result in 20% of net income assessed for two children in separate families with each child supported at 10%, three children in separate families, 30% of net income with each child supported at 10% etc. For each additional child in the same family, an additional 4% of net income will be assessed for child support for that family. Any action previously barred by tribal statute of limitations less than 18 years may also be maintained under this section provided the cause of action accrued less than 18 years from the time of filing. A child may bring an action to establish paternity at any time within the child's life for the limited purpose of establishing enrollment with the Tribe. - e. Pregnancy and childbirth expenses, as well as genetic testing bills are admissible without foundation testimony and constitute prima facie evidence of costs.

 - e. Custodial parent means the parent or other guardian who has legal custody of a child or children pursuant to a court order or who exercises physical custody over a child on the basis of an agreement between the parents or because one parent has absented himself from the child's home.
 - f. Gross Income is income from any source, including but not limited to salaries, wages, commissions, bonuses, dividends, severance or retirement pay, pensions, interest trust income, annuities, capital gains, unemployment compensation, worker's compensation, disability insurance benefits, tips, gifts, prizes, alimony, general assistance payments and any per capita payments. It also includes in-kind contributions calculated at reasonable market value.
 - g. In-Kind Contributions are those contributions to the support of a minor child other than cash contributions. Examples include food or sustenance provided to the child and his family in the form of game or fish, necessities provided to the family such as heating wood or fuel, or necessary day care services.
3. Setting of Child Support Obligation. In any case where the tribal court is determining the paternity of a child, decreeing a divorce between parties

- or establishing child support for a custodial parent when the absent parent is away from the home for more than thirty (30) days, the tribal court shall set an amount of support to be paid by an absent parent to the custodial parent using the standards set out herein. Upon request by either parent, the Court may review any order of child support every three years to determine if more or less support is called upon under the child support guidelines. If there is a substantial and material change of circumstances, any party may petition the tribal court for a modification of child support at any time.
4. Presumptive Child Support. The presumptive child support established by guidelines adopted by the Tribal Judicial Board and Court shall be rebuttably presumed to be the correct amount of support to be awarded in any child support proceeding to establish or modify an order of support. Every order or decree setting or modifying a child support order shall state the presumptive amount of support and justify either an upward or downward deviation based upon the deviations prescribed by the Tribal Judicial Board and court.
 5. Establishing Child Support Guidelines. The Turtle Mountain Judicial Board, in consultation with the Tribal Court, shall establish child support guidelines which must, at a minimum:
 - a. Take into consideration all gross income of the absent parent;
 - b. Be based on specific and descriptive criteria and result in a computation of an amount of child support which is sufficient to meet the basic needs of the child or children for housing, clothing, food, education, health care, and goods and services required by physical and mental disability;
 - c. Provide for the children's health care needs either through assuring Indian Health Service coverage or benefits that supplement those benefits and providing for each parent to pay his/her share of uninsured medical expenses;
 - d. Consider the economic condition of the absent parent and his ability or inability to obtain gainful employment within the reservation;
 - e. Provide for review and revision, where appropriate, of the child support guidelines at least once every four years to ensure that the amounts provided for in the guidelines are periodically adjusted for increases or decreases associated with the cost of caring for children on the Turtle Mountain reservation;
 - f. Allow for deviation from the guidelines based upon factors such as: the amount of visitation exercised by the absent parent, including provisions for abatement of support, when the absent parent exercises visitation for a consecutive period of more than 29 days; whether the absent parent provides the transportation for visitation; income contributed to the child by third persons including extended family members of the absent parent; income contributed to the absent parent by a third party including spouse; special medical needs of the child; day care expenses; age of the child; the responsibility of the absent parent to support other children, either in his care or children he is paying support for; and any other ground cited by the Board or court. In any case where deviation is granted the Court shall expressly state the ground for deviation.
 - g. Consider the in-kind contributions of the absent parent as child support and develop guidelines that take into consideration the in-kind contributions of the absent parent and his family.
 6. Public Assignment of Child Support Rights. Establishment and Amount of Obligation
 - a. Assignment
 - (1) Any person who receives Temporary Assistance for Needy Families either from the State of North Dakota or the Tribe shall, upon applying for such benefits, assign all accrued child support rights and the right to future support to the Tribe through the execution of an assignment of support rights. Said assignment shall authorize the Tribe to bring an action in the Tribal Court, or other appropriate court of competent jurisdiction, to both establish a support order and to collect on that order from the absent parent.

- (2) Any other person, not receiving TANF benefits, may apply to the Tribe for services and execute an assignment of support rights to the Tribe for the establishment and collection of support. In those non-TANF cases, the Tribe shall be entitled to collect a fee from the custodial parent for the collection of support in accordance with a fee schedule to be set by the Tribal Judicial Committee in consultation with the Tribal Court.
 - (3) Any person, required to execute an assignment of support rights to the Tribe, but whom refuses to do so without good cause, or who fails to cooperate with the Tribe or State Office of Child Support Enforcement in the collection of support shall be subject to a sanction in the amount of $50 from the TANF grant for the first refusal, $100 for the second refusal and exclusion from the TANF program for a third refusal. Good cause to refuse cooperation shall include the following situations:
 - (a) When the custodial parent has a well-founded fear of violence from the non-custodial parent as evidenced by the existence of a order of protection in which the custodial parent is protected from the absent parent;
 - (b) When the child was the product of rape or incest which was reported to appropriate law enforcement officials within a reasonable time after the commission of such an act;
7. Child Support Agreements. Agreements regarding child support may be submitted to the Court. All such agreements shall be accompanied by financial affidavits, including pay stubs and an expense report if a person is self-employed, submitted by each party disclosing the financial condition of each party as required to determine a presumptive child support order. If the agreed amount of support deviates from the presumptive amount of support the parties shall furnish statements explaining why they have agreed to a lesser amount than that presumed. The Court may reject an agreed-upon support amount if the parties do not demonstrate good grounds for deviating from the presumptive amount.
 8. Modifications. After passage of guidelines by the Tribal Judicial Board and Court, current child support orders may be modified to conform to the guidelines, unless the amount of support previously entered was the result of an agreement which the Court finds to be equitable in light of the guidelines.
 9. Voluntary Unemployment or Underemployment. Where either parent is voluntarily unemployed or underemployed, the Court shall compute the amount of support based upon the potential earning capacity of the unemployed or underemployed person. In making that determination the Court shall consider:
 - a. Prior employment and educational background and history;
 - b. Availability of employment in the area which- the parent is qualified for;
 - c. Prevailing wage rates and unemployment rate in the area;
 - d. In no circumstance shall a parent who is a member of the Tribe be subject to a determination that he/she voluntarily became unemployed or underemployed because he returned to the reservation for purposes of being closer to his family.

Collection of Child Support.

1. Purpose. It is the intent of this Title of the Child Support Code to allow for the prompt collection and enforcement of child support from absent parents in a manner that is consistent with due process of law under the Tribe's constitution and the Indian Civil Rights Act, while permitting the tribal court and tribal child support agency to use all lawful methods to collect support for children.

2. Wage Withholding.

- a. In any case where the Tribal Court has set a child support order, or has honored an order of support from a foreign jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C.1738B, the Court shall enter an order directed to the employer of the absent parent, requiring that employer to withhold and pay the amount of present support, plus any amount to be paid on arrearages, to the tribal court as payee for the custodial parent, Tribe (if the child is receiving TANF benefits or foster care benefits from the Tribe), or State (if the child is receiving TANF or foster care benefits from the State). The Tribal Judicial Board, in consultation with the Tribal Court, shall establish procedures for the disbursement of amounts collected under this section, either to the Tribal or state agency due the amounts collected. Income withholding under this section is mandatory even if the absent parent is not delinquent in paying his support.
- b. If the employer of the absent parent is the Tribe or a tribal entity, the Tribe or that entity shall be required to withhold the amount of support and pay to the Tribal Court just as any other employer is required to do, provided the income withholding order comes from the Turtle Mountain Tribal Court. The Tribe and its entities are not required to honor any wage withholding order from a foreign jurisdiction unless said order has been filed with the Tribal Court and the Tribal Court has honored that order. In no way shall this section be construed as a waiver of the Tribe's sovereign immunity from suit.
- c. The failure of any employer to comply with an order from the tribal court directing an income withholding shall subject the employer to a penalty in the amount of $100.00 for the first violation and $500.00 for every subsequent violation, except that said penalty shall not be applicable to any Tribal employer.
- d. The Tribal Judicial Board, in consultation with the Court, shall establish a uniform income withholding order which shall be utilized in any case of income withholding. That form, at a minimum, must:
 - (1) Be served upon both the employer and child support obligor by first class mail, at the time of the commencement of the income withholding;
 - (2) Notify the child support obligor of his right to request a hearing, within 1.0 days of the notice, in the tribal court if the income withholding order is in violation of tribal law, or is creating a severe hardship upon him or his existent family, If a request for hearing is filed, the Court may stay the income withholding order at its discretion pending the hearing;
 - (3) Notify the employer that it has seven days from the date the monies were due and payable to the obligor to pay the amount over to the Tribal Court;
 - (4) Permit the employer to charge a nominal amount, not to exceed $5.00 for the compliance with the income withholding order;
 - (5) Notify the employer and the child support obligor of the priorities for payment should the obligor be paying support for other children pursuant to a previous income withholding order from the Court;
 - (6) Notify the employer that it shall be subject to a fine in the amount of $500 for any employee it discharges or disciplines because of the receipt of an income withholding order from the tribal court, or for a fine in the amount of $100.00 for a first violation and $500.00 for any subsequent violation for refusal to comply with an income withholding order from the tribal court. This penalty shall not be applicable for an employee's refusal to comply with a wage withholding order from a foreign jurisdiction unless said order has been filed with the tribal court and honored by the tribal court;

- (7) Notify the employer that any income withholding order for support takes precedence over any other lawful debt owed by the child support obligor, except those debts lawfully owed to the employer itself which were incurred before the income withholding order was generated.

3. Collection of Support from Other Sources.

a. In any case where "the Tribal Court has entered a judgment for child support arrearages against a child support obligor, the Court shall forward the judgment to the appropriate state IV-D agency (State Child Support Enforcement) with a request that that receiving agency:

Said amounts intercepted shall be applied to any amounts owed the Tribal or State agency for past support of the child, and then to the amount owed the custodial parent;
- (2) Apply for the intercept of any worker's compensation or unemployment compensation benefits owed the obligor in the amount identified by the tribal court. Said amounts intercepted shall be applied first to any amounts owed the Tribal or State agency for past support of the child, and then to the amount owed the custodial parent;
- (3) Apply for any other collection efforts available to the receiving agency including liens against real or personal property under the jurisdiction of the receiving agency, and/or suspension of driver's or other licenses issued by the state jurisdiction;
- (4) Apply for any parental locator services that can assist the custodial parent in the location of the absent parent to assure collection of child support;
- (5) Apply for any financial institution data match programs that the State IV-D agency operates which would permit the development of information about any tribal child support obligor who maintains a financial institution account, including a request that the State agency impose liens upon any accounts held by the obligor and pay said amounts first to any Tribal or State agency owed monies for supporting said child and then to the custodial parent;
- (6) Apply for any credit bureau reporting that the State IV-D agency operates with regard to state orders for support.

b. In any case where the Tribal Court establishes that a child support obligor owes more than $1,000 in back child support to either the custodial parent or a tribal or state agency and after a show cause hearing establishes that the obligor has the ability to pay said support obligation and has wrongfully refused to do so, the Tribal Court may order the suspension of any license issued by the Tribe or privilege including the privilege to drive on the reservation public highways. Said license may be suspended under the following conditions:

- (1) The Court shall allow the obligor to retire the child support arrearages by paying periodic payments to the Court and if the obligor complies with said order by making the first payment, he shall regain his license or licenses, subject to a further suspension if the obligor fails to make future periodic payments for no substantial reason;
- (2) The obligor shall be permitted to demonstrate that the suspension of the license will cause a severe hardship upon himself or his existent family;

2. No earlier than six (6) months after entry of a decree of legal separation, the Court on motion of either party shall convert the decree to a decree of dissolution of marriage.

The provisions as to personal property disposition may be revoked or modified, unless the Court finds the existence of conditions that justify the reopening of a judgment under the laws of this tribe.
2. Unless otherwise agreed in writing or expressly provided in the decree, the obligation to pay future maintenance is terminated upon the death of either party or the remarriage of the party receiving maintenance.
3. Unless otherwise agreed in writing or expressly provided in the decree, provisions for the support of a child are terminated by emancipation of the child but not by the death of a parent obligated to support the child. 2. Except under paragraphs (3) and (4) of Subsection (a), physical presence on this jurisdiction of the child, or of the child and one (1) of the contestants, is not alone sufficient to confer jurisdiction on a court of this jurisdiction to make a child custody determination.

4. A child custody proceeding is commenced in Turtle Mountain Tribal Court;
 - a. By a parent, by filing a petition

 - (2) For custody of the child in the jurisdiction in which he is permanently resident or found; or

2. If a proceeding for dissolution of marriage or legal separation is dismissed, any temporary custody order is vacated unless a parent or the child's custodian moves that the proceeding continue as a custody proceeding and the Court finds, after a hearing, that the circumstances of the parents and the best interest of the child requires that a custody decree be issued.
3. If a custody proceeding commenced in the absence of a petition for dissolution of marriage or legal separation under Subsection (1) (ii) or (2) of Section 9.0901 of this Code, is dismissed, any temporary custody order is vacated.

The investigation and report may be made by a child welfare worker or a social worker of the Bureau of Indian Affairs.
2. In preparing his report concerning a child, the investigator may consult any person who may have information about the child and his potential custodial arrangements. Upon order of the Court, the investigator shall refer the child to professional personnel for diagnosis. The investigator may consult with and obtain information from medical, psychiatric, or other expert persons who have served the child in the past without obtaining the consent of the parent or the child's if he has reached the age of sixteen (16), unless the Court finds that he lacks mental capacity to consent. If the requirements of Subsection (c) are fulfilled, the investigator's report may be received in evidence at the hearing.

3. The Court shall mail the investigator's report to counsel and to any party not represented by counsel at least ten (10) days prior to the hearing. The investigator shall make available to counsel and to any party not represented by counsel and investigator's file of underlying data, and reports, complete texts of diagnostic reports made to the investigator pursuant to the provisions of Subsection (b), and the names and addresses of all persons whom the investigator has consulted. 4. If the Court finds it necessary to protect the child's welfare that the record of any interview, report, investigation, or testimony in a custody proceeding be kept secret, the Court shall make an appropriate order sealing the record.

2. The Court may modify an order granting or denying visitation rights whenever modification would serve the best interest of the child; but the Court shall not restrict a parent's visitation rights unless it finds that the visitation would endanger seriously the child's physical, mental, moral, or emotional health.

Judicial supervision.

1. Except as otherwise agreed by the parties in writing at the time of the custody decree, the custodian may determine the child's upbringing, including his education, health care, and religious training, unless the Court after hearing, finds upon motion by the noncustodial parent, that in the absence of a specific limitation of the custodian's authority, the child's physical health would be endangered or his emotional development significantly impaired.
2. If both parents or all contestants agree to the order or if the Court finds that in the absence of the order the child's physical health would be endangered or his emotional development significantly impaired, the Court may order the Child Welfare Worker or Social Worker of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, to exercise continuing supervision over the case to assure that the custodial or visitation terms of the decree are carried out.

 - b. the child has been integrated into the family of the petitioner with consent of the custodian; or
 - c. The child's present environment endangers seriously his physical, mental, moral or emotional health, and the harm likely to be caused by a change of environment is outweighed by its advantages to him.
3. Attorney fees and costs shall be assessed against a party seeking modification if the Court finds the modification action is vexatious and constitutes harassment.

9.0910 Affidavit practice.

A party seeking a temporary custody order or modification of a custody decree shall submit together with his moving papers an affidavit setting forth facts supporting the requested order or modification and shall give notice, together with a copy of his affidavit, to the other parties to the proceeding, who may file opposing affidavits.
